Preparation and Coating of...

Galvanized Surfaces

ATTENTION:
Engineers & Architects

Coating failures on galvanized surfaces are not uncommon and can be prevented. Don't be one of the ones suffering those failures. Proper attention to details when preparing your specifications or when carrying out the work will go a long way toward successfully coating galvanized steel surfaces. Be prepared by attending this luncheon meeting and finding out what the pitfalls are and what can be done about them.

The presentation will open with a brief discussion on the types of galvanizing that are usually encountered since different galvanized finishes require specific surface preparations or treatments prior to coating. Several surface preparation options will be discussed including abrasive blasting and chemical cleaning and etching. Methods for touching up damaged galvanized surfaces, the use of wash primers and bonding primers as well as acceptable finish coats will be thoroughly investigated. The discussion will conclude with a number of case studies regarding failed coating applications on galvanized surfaces.

Guest Speaker: Ray Tombaugh, Senior Consultant, KTA-Tator
Program Chair: Tom Aldinger, KTA-Tator
Chapter Chair: Ron Robison, Redwood Painting Co. Inc.
